FIGHTING IN THE ALPINE HEIGHTS

Passages on the rocky heights of the Adamello, where the Italians are doing some of the most spectacular fighting of the war.

At the Theatres

THE PARAMOUNT.

"LEST WE FORGET"—An eight part feature, starring Rita Jolivet, assisted by a cast of 300 persons, is being presented today and tomorrow at the Paramount. There is much that is excellent in this production in which Miss Jolivet, the French actress, who survived the sinking of the Lusitania, is the central figure. The picture has been produced at a lavish expenditure of money. The scenes following the sinking of the Lusitania are unusually interesting. Miss Jolivet is natural and forceful and her physical qualifications are equally in her favor. The picture has a strong patriotic appeal. Hamilton Revelle is seen in the role of Harry Winslow, a young American, who admires the beautiful Rita Jolivet, soprano of Paris.

ORPHEUM THEATRE.

"OVER THE TOP"—is convincing, because one feels that it is accurate in detail and in action. Empey, the hero of the play, lives again on the screen; the thrilling moments he experienced during the 18 months he was on the battlefield, and in view of the fact that he personally directed the building of the trenches, the outfitting of the soldiers who take part in the raiding scenes and everything connected with the military phases of the picture, these are the most realistic scenes conceivable. By special arrangement with the War Department, the trench scenes were made at Camp Wheeler, near Macon, Ga., and more than 7,500 United States Regulars were used in the raiding operations. The airplane scenes, the most thrilling of the kind ever seen on the screen, also were made by government consent, the filming being done at one of the army aviation camps on Long Island.

ARCADE THEATRE.

Lewis Oh Girl's Revue at the Arcade Theatre promises to uphold the high standard of attractions that have been playing this popular playhouse the past few weeks, as it comes very well recommended. Bert Lewis himself is an old time star, having appeared in this town with several big musical productions. Surrounding him is a well trained cast of artists, each capable of pleasing. The show will remain for the entire week, presenting three bills, opening with "The Midnight Frolic" Monday and Tuesday. On the screen will be Helen Holmes in "The Lost Express."

Dehydration Principle in Food Is Satisfactory Aid to Conservation

Three methods of drying fruit and vegetable. (1) The gas oven is an ideal drier; the ventilation is perfect. (2) Better made, according to Government specifications. (3) Over head rack dried with vegetable which dry from surplus heat passing up from the stove.

The principle of dehydration particularly as applied to fruits has been known throughout the ages; but application of that principle in a thoroughly satisfactory way is a very recent development. Dehydrated foods are natural products from which the water only has been removed. If the water is restored the product returns to a condition as nearly approaching that of the fresh that which is dried in all essentials, comparable with the fresh. No chemicals are needed in the new process—no sulphur to bleach or dye to imitate the natural color. These products have been found by Department of Agriculture experts to have the same nutritive value as the fresh and they are practically unaltered, when properly packed in physical nature and little affected in taste. Army officers have investigated these dried products carefully for barracks and camp life and considering them from all standpoints, testify almost unqualifiedly in their favor. Distances in hospitals command the healthful new uniformity and palatability of the dehydrated foods, even for invalids. The civilian population has found properly dehydrated foods practically as good as the fresh vegetable for which they are substituted and more economical. The Subsistence Division of the Quartermaster's Department of the Army has purchased several thousand tons of dehydrated products for use in France. Dehydration reduces bulk from one-third to one-fifth and weight from one-sixth to one-tenth. This process will conserve great quantities of vegetables and fruits that would otherwise go to waste. It will through the use of mechanical devices, eliminate waste from trimming, paring, drying, adding unnecessary handling and be an enormous saving in tonnage; and at the same time, loss nothing in attractiveness and palatability. Properly dried products keep indefinitely, are excluded from moisture, as germs of decay cannot grow on dry material, and chemical changes take place in it with extreme slowness.
